

July 5, 2011

Planman Technologies wins Digitization Tender from National Library of Norway

Planman Technologies recently won a digitization tender from the National Library of Norway. As a part of the framework agreement Planman will be providing a full range of services to The National Library of Norway which includes digitization of microfilms, OCR processing and structural analysis of digitized images with text content, production of e- books and consultancy services.

This project is a part of the comprehensive digitization programme wherein the National Library of Norway is planning to digitize all its depository collections which contain about 70 million newspaper pages and in excess of 2 million periodical publications, several books and manuscripts.